BACKGROUND

Our Story

Smoky Joe's started as a pushcart on Chicago's Maxwell Street, a haven for thousands of immigrants looking for a better life in America. The founder was Joseph Bublick, an immigrant from Russia. Together, Joe and his wife Esther, both tailors, cut and sewed sheepskin vests which they sold to Chicagoans in the cold winter. They prospered so well that they decided to establish a full retail store and Smoky Joe's came to life. The name originated because Joe was dark skinned people referred to him as Smoky. The name carried on as his son, Morry enjoyed smoking pipes and cigars.

Their little business started to grow and in the afternoons their son, Morris (Morry), worked as a salesman while attending law school at the University of Chicago. He had a love for the clothing business, designing his own outfits that customers so admired they would ask to buy them right off his back, even if the size was wrong. Morry decided to forgo law school after recognizing his passion for the business. His younger brother, Max, managed the economics of the business, while Joe operated the register and provided sage advice to customers. When sister Rosalyn married her husband Dave, his addition to the business completed the perfect family team. As the stores grew in number (3) so did the family. Coincidentally, Max, Morry and Roz had ten daughters who at one time or another all worked in the stores.

The business grew as a style center throughout Chicago, especially among the young adult crowd looking for something different. Morry originated The Zoot Suit, Mr. B. collars, Italian knit shirts faced in butter leather and even reverse pleated slacks. Entertainers whose names are now famous shopped at Smoky Joe's. Baby Huey and the Babysitters, Smokey Robinson, James Brown and Sammy Davis Jr., were frequent customers. The Jackson Five, who grew up in nearby, Gary, Indiana purchased their suits at Smoky Joe's. From time to time they sang and danced in the lobby too.

Over the years Smoky Joe's became well known throughout the fashion industry in North America and around the world. Designers often made appointments with Morry to get his vision on where their crazy industry would go next. Window displays which were quite animated for their time, attracted crowds from all over Chicago.

Fast Forward

Beth Omans, wife of Steve Omans heard so many amazing stories that she became intrigued about the history of Smoky Joe's. Having worked in the retail industry for over 20 years, Beth decided to pursue her dream to design unique clothing. Her first collection will bring back the smoking jacket for men, women and dogs. The tuxedo style jackets are a fun piece which can be worn with jeans or dress pants for a night out on the town or to a black tie event. Collaborating with other independent designers and fashion houses, Beth has brought back the original style creators, Smoky Joe's Clothing. Inspired by fashion from an era where clothing was designed using the finest velvets and brocade materials and craftsmanship, Smoky Joe's Clothing continues to be a story of America at its best -- innovation, hard work and fearless enterprise.

Smoky Joe's started as a pushcart on Chicago's Maxwell Street in Chicago, a haven for thousands of immigrants looking for a better life in America. The founder was Joseph Bublick, an immigrant from Russia. Joe and his wife, Esther, both tailors, cut and sewed sheepskin vests which they sold to Chicagoans in the cold winter. They prospered so well that they decided to establish a full retail store and Smoky Joe's Clothing came to life. The name originated because Joe was dark skinned so people referred to him as Smoky. The name carried on as his son, Morry enjoyed smoking pipes and cigars.

From the 1920's to the mid 1980's, Smoky Joe's was the place to go for those seeking the most up to date stylish clothing. The business grew as a style center throughout Chicago especially the young adult crowd. Mr. B. Collars, Italian knit shirts faced in butter leather, reverse pleated slacks brought the crowds in from across America. Morry originated the Zoot Suit stamping the Smoky Joe's Clothing destination. Beth, a former Optician has passion for design. With no formal training in tailoring, she decided to bring back a timeless piece, the Smoking Jacket. Classical, eternal, undying is the smoking jacket; while trends come and go the smoking jacket is a staple in one's wardrobe.

MISSION

Smoky Joe's Clothing is committed to providing its customers with high quality smoking jackets and accessories that are made in the USA.

WHY A SMOKING JACKET

Through the years the smoking jackets has been known as a traditional coat worn specifically for evening wear while smoking or lounging. As gentlemen retired from the dining table they would slip into the parlor to sip fine wine and enjoy a pipe or cigar. These rooms often did not have heat so the jacket would provide a source of warmth in addition to covering the smell of smoke on their day wear. Redefining smoking jackets as a fashion staple in one's wardrobe the jacket is an alternative to a tuxedo, a night on the town or a statement piece for your sales team.

WHEN TO WEAR A SMOKING JACKET

Jackets can be worn to a wedding, charity event, Captains Dinner on a cruise, Bar Mitzvah's, date night, holidays; with dress pants or jeans. Trade shows as an ice breaker when your entire team is wearing the same color jacket, wedding parties, clubs, teams, fraternities, sororities, lounge jackets, dressing robes or relaxing.

PERSONAL BIO

Beth Stern was born in Detroit, Michigan and raised in Clearwater, Florida. With a zest for life, Beth began her entrepreneurial career at age nine in her garage each summer with Polly Birds Playhouse, a camp for neighborhood kids. Growing up her pug, Kippy was her assistant. The camp grew each year where she developed people skills, the arts, fun and games and a genuine care for people. She was so excited to earn money each week she thought she had a thriving business. A few years later her parents enlightened her that they were so happy she was working to develop skills, they didn't want to burst her bubble that they paid for all the art supplies and cookies and juice and the actual balance sheet was negative.

It was at that time that true business skills kicked in. Beth continued on with babysitting, cashiering, gift wrapping and several retail sales jobs she knew combined her artistic side with her business which led to a degree in Opticianry Dispensing. Beth worked as an optician with some of the leading high end designers in the optical industry for over twenty years which brought her to Chicago, IL. As the optical world was shifting, Beth pursued her passion for people by working in the insurance industry for fifteen years. While working in insurance, Beth needed to complete her Bachelor's degree so while working in insurance she attended

Northwestern University where she graduated in 2012 with a degree in Leadership and Organizational behavior. Changes in the health insurance arena led her to pivot back to her passion for fashion, design and people as the lead designer of Smoky Joe's Clothing. Hearing so many amazing stories from her husband, she needed to bring back the iconic name, Smoky Joe's Clothing to Chicago and the world. With the World Wide Web at her fingertips, Beth is living out her entrepreneurial spirit fitting people in traditional jackets and accessories, this time with her dog, Benini.

Smoky Joe's Clothing was rebranded in 2011 by Beth Stern who is redefining the traditional smoking jacket of yesterday to a fashionable and fun jacket that can be worn for many occasions. One does not have to smoke to enjoy the style of a smoking jacket; one should have a discerning eye for a distinctive look.

TESTIMONIALS

BEST SMOKING JACKET I OWN

Posted by StogieShane

Living in Florida, I only get a couple of months each year that are cool enough to be comfortable in a jacket. The light weight of the product makes it comfortable for a few more months than my others. The vivid colors and unique print make it more of a conversation starter than others. I love the collar and cuffs, as well. I highly recommend as a well-constructed, unique piece of your smoking ensemble.

EXCELLENT WINE SMOKING JACKET, STRONG CUFFS AND ROBE BELT

Posted By Unknown

As a connoisseur in velvet clothing I find the construction of this jacket to be excellent. Very durable. Keep in mind that it is of a red wine color, not bright red.

The black cuffs are also solidly constructed, nothing is flimsy or cheap.

I am 6'2" 205lbs, chest size 42L and 34 inch waist, the medium sized jacket hugged my body perfectly, I was looking for a fitted look and this jacket delivered. The sleeves are the right length. I alter the tightness of the belt depending on how much I want my narrower waist to accentuate my broad shoulders. This jacket has received many compliments.

I can dress the jacket up with a velvet bow tie, velvet slippers, and black tuxedo pants, or be more casual with jeans and loafers as seen in some of the site pictures.

A FUN ITEM AND A GREAT ADDITION TO MY TUXEDO

Posted by Unknown
on 22nd Aug. 2016

First, I admit it took me a while to pull the trigger on this purchase. The quality is top notch however; it was figuring out how much I would use it that initially held me back.

I can tell you I have used it at 1 party, multiple times at home and will be using it for a wedding this weekend. I am glad I added the black velvet bowtie.

I love the quality, fit and the comments I get when wearing it. I look forward to finding more uses and enjoying this great jacket for many years.

FUNCTION MEETS FASHION

Posted by DanielM

I love this jacket! Every time I wear it I get compliments. People recognize it for what it is, unique and well made.

With generous pockets it holds all my accessories. It is light weight fits like glove.

YOU NEED ONE OF THESE!

GREAT SERVICE!

Had a great time shopping for a 60's style playboy mansion theme party. Amazing selection of smoking jackets and other great accessories. Purchased an amazing outfit head to toe.

EXCELLENT QUALITY, EVEN BETTER CUSTOMER SERVICE!

Posted by Unknown

This is everything you would expect in a smoking jacket. Great quality, unique styling, and a comfortable fit. Truly gives you a feel of an era long gone by where men's fashion was characterized by truly distinguished garments. Beth was accommodating in handling an exchange and made sure the new jacket was received in time for Christmas Eve.
